California Cities Bet On
Casinos May 12, 2003

San Pablo hopes it's hit the fiscal jackpot - again. Richmond is deciding whether to roll the dice. The rest of Contra Costa County is waiting to see if it's worth a bet, but isn't likely to take a piece of the action.

San Pablo is backing a proposal from Sonoma County's Lytton Band of Pomo Indians to turn the 9.5-acre Casino San Pablo into an Indian reservation where blackjack and slot machines would be allowed in California's first truly urban casino.

The city gets $1.8 million of its $8.5 million annual budget from the cardroom. The casino also must hire at least 30 percent of its employees from San Pablo. Richmond is considering a proposal from Lake County's Scotts Valley Band of Pomo Indians band to convert Terminal No. 3 in its port into a Las Vegas-style casino. The City Council is debating how much to spend on a feasibility study.

casinos for cities is a new, online casinos lucrative source of revenue, online casinos no small matter at a time online casinos when local government is online casinos reeling from a one-two online casinos punch: The lingering online casinos recession that continues to online casinos cut into sales tax revenues, online casinos
a major source of municipal online casinos revenue.

online casinos

A $35 billion state deficit online casinos
that will result in deep local online casinos funding cuts and the shift of online casinos program responsibility to online casinos local government, adding online casinos even more fiscal problems, online casinos
for years to come.

online casinos

Even as local government online casinos looks for new revenue online casinos sources in coming years, online casinos Indians across the Bay Area online casinos and California, many of online casinos them landless for decades, online casinos are flexing their newfound online casinos economic and political online casinos muscle. They're forming online casinos alliances with Nevada online casinos gaming companies to online casinos propose new casinos on online casinos
"reservation" land bought online casinos
for that purpose.

But Davis also is attempting online casinos to renegotiate gambling online casinos compacts with the 61 tribes online casinos that currently have casinos online casinos in an attempt to win $1.5 online casinos billion in new payments to online casinos help ease the deficit. In return for those concessions, the tribes
could demand that Davis drop his opposition to urban casinos.
